

Salma Shah is an experienced broadcaster, political commentator and an expert in UK politics and global affairs.

She has been at the centre of Whitehall working with UK ministers on important policy and political campaigns for over a decade and one of a handful of people who've worked in opposition, coalition, majority and minority governments.

Salma is a regular panelist on many political programmes and shares her analysis in speeches and articles on a range of topics from national security to arts and culture.